Lottery no solution to education costs

Property taxes remain the main staple for funds

By Diana Ross
Statehouse News Service

The kids are going back to school and the moms and dads are worrying about school violence, what their kids need in the way of clothes and vaccinations and maybe even the scarcity of substitute teachers.

If the parents are still paying their property taxes, about two thirds of which go to the schools, they are asking the same question they do every year at this time: Why can't the state pay more of the cost of education?

Indeed, last week the Associated Press reported the state is paying about 38 percent of all federal-state-local spending on elementary and secondary education in 1999-2000. That's significantly less than 20 years ago, when the state was paying about 42 percent, and about the same as 10 years ago.

Why? Raising the figure to the magic 51 percent suggested by the state constitution would mean finding another $2 billion, in effect raising the state income tax again or the state sales tax, the only ones broad enough to do the job.

Over the last two decades, the movement by the education lobby, parents and even politicians toward using the state income and sales taxes to finance the schools has ebbed and flowed like the tides. But unlike the tides, it has failed to make any real progress in eroding the rock-solid opposition of voters.

The governor and legislators understandably have declined to commit political suicide by raising the taxes, anyway.

While the state's share of total school spending may be the top measure, the school's share of major state spending runs a close second. That's elementary and secondary education's share of the state's general revenue funds, which comes from the income and sales taxes and go for education, prisons, welfare and other major programs.

And that number's a little brighter. About 29 percent of all state GRF spending is going for elementary and secondary education this year, nearly double the 15 percent of 20 years ago, but up only slightly from the 27 percent of 10 years ago.

Why? There was 1989's income tax hike but no other major action came until 1997's creation of a minimum level for spending per student, with state grants to bring the poorest districts up to their level.

Everyone agreed then to take a different tack: to use the improving economy or the so-called "natural growth" in tax revenue, rather than the artificial growth of a tax increase, to solve at least the poorest schools part of the problem.

Yet, the South Suburbs, for example, and other parts of the state, where schools are often poor but not the poorest, say they're still waiting for their turn for help. But that's another issue, rewriting the state aid formula, not refinancing it.

Will there ever be enough money for education in Illinois? Or are our schools the classic bottomless pit?

Other states post higher percentages of state spending for schools, but are their education lobbies, parents and politicians satisfied?

Illinois may never reach the magic 51 percent, much less take the plunge and switch from the local property tax to the state income or sales taxes, unless voters realize how much elementary and second education actually costs. Not so much the cost locally. Many taxpayers have some idea of that. But the cost statewide. Do they know that?

If they did, those of us connected with state government still wouldn't be answering the question, "Why doesn't the lottery pay for education?"

Here's why: The total federal-state-local spending on the 2 million students, the 22,000 administrators, teachers and staff and the 900 grade school, high school and unit school districts in Illinois in 1999-2000 will top $16 billion. That's $16 billion.

The federal share will be about $1 billion, the state share about $6 billion and the local share about $9 billion.

Just how much is $16 billion? To the state, it's nearly 75 percent of the total $22 billion available in the GRF this year, that is, 75 percent of all major state spending this year. In fact, it's more than the total $14 billion the state will see from the income and sales taxes combined this year.

And it's 20 times, yes, that's 20 times, more than the total $790 million the state will see from the lottery and riverboat gambling combined this year.

Moms and dads asking why the state can't pay more of the cost of education should ask themselves where they'd get the money.

KidCare program helps limited-income families with health care for children

General Assembly passes measures to educate families who might qualify about benefits of KidCare

By Jay Hoffman

No single issue is more important to the well being of our children than proper health care and adequate health insurance. Many working families fall through the cracks because their employers may not offer health insurance or the premiums are too expensive.

In response the state has implemented a program called KidCare. I have written about the program in the past in an effort to help publicize the benefits.

KidCare is a state-provided health insurance program designed to help families with limited income. The biggest problem with KidCare is that not enough people know about it. While the program has been in existence for more than a year, only 33,000 of the 191,000 eligible children are currently enrolled.

Families with incomes up to 133 percent of the federal poverty level or $22,211 for a family of four are eligible for the program. A family of four earning up to $30,895 is eligible for benefits with some co-payments or premiums required.

This session the General Assembly passed several measures designed to educate more families about the benefits of KidCare. House Bill 1399 requires the Department of Public Aid to develop procedures to allow youth service agencies, employers, labor unions, local chambers of commerce and religious organizations to assist in enrolling children in the KidCare program.

Another important measure, House Bill 1732, will allow community providers and schools to act as sites to enroll children. Both of these measures were recently signed into law.

Pregnant women also qualify for KidCare. The importance of prenatal care is well documented. Not only will prenatal care avoid long-term health problems for both mother and child and save money - it's the right thing to do. That's why we have an obligation to help spread the word about this worthy program.

It is our hope that these measures will help boost the enrollment figures and help children and families receive decent health care. We should monitor the program of these programs and strive to enroll all families that are eligible.

If you have any specific questions about the KidCare program you can call Public Aid at (800) 226-0768. Or, as always, feel free to contact me at one of my constituent service offices.

STARS program helps give troubled children a hand

St. Elizabeth assists parents in finding needed answers

By Michael Heil
Staff writer

The outbreak of violence among children in today's society has parents, educators and school administrators shaking their heads in disbelief. Why is it happening and who is to blame?

So far, there are few concrete answers. Through a Social Training and Resolution Skills Program (STARS) offered by St. Elizabeth Medical Center, in conjunction with its Behavioral Health System, psychiatrists and BHS professionals are seeking answers to violent behavior as they help aggressive, disruptive children build anger management, communication and social skills. STARS began in the spring as an eight-week pilot program, helping children from 8 to 12 years of age. The program, complete with a graduation, will begin again in mid-September.

Jarrod Leffler, a national certified counselor at SEMC, as part of its curriculum, heavily stresses parental involvement.

Leffler said it is pertinent that parents remain close to their children while they interact with others.

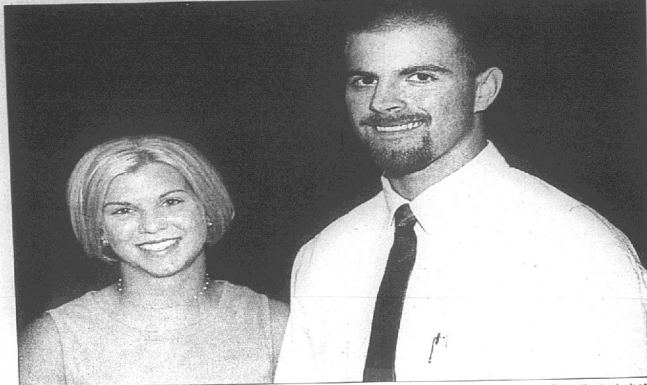

"It's important that they know what is happening in the group, and it is important that they inform us to what is happening at home," Leffler said. In addition to caregivers' information, Leffler said, the children's assessments enable BHS professionals and psychiatrists to determine if a child will require professional help.

"Sometimes caregivers and teachers ask whether kids are being kids or if their behavior requires counseling," Leffler said. "I tell them to ask friends and family members how they view their child's behavior and how it compares to their child's."

Leffler also said that referrals for children's counseling have recently increased. "News of disruptive behavior in schools has made potential problems, resulting in demands for such services," he said. "Early assessment and intervention is always better."

For more information about the program, contact the SEMC's BHS Resource Center at 799-3888.

MCT board sets new bike trail rules

Panel bans hunting, most motorized vehicles, horses

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

A new formal set of rules approved by the Madison County Transit District board means that horses will not be allowed on the district's bicycle trails.

Hunting and operating motorized vehicles, except motorized wheelchairs and electric bicycles, are also prohibited.

The board approved the rules at the Aug. 26 meeting. The district now operates the Madison County Nature Trail from Edwardsville to Pontoon Beach and is planning two more major trails, the Confluence Trail from Alton to Granite City and the Schoolhouse Trail from Madison to Troy and parts of Edwardsville.

MCT Managing Director Jerry Kane said most of the issues had been discussed in the early 1990s when the district first became involved in trails, but had not been formalized.

Permitted uses include walking, running, skating and bicycling, including electric bicycles and bicycle trailers. Pets are permitted, but must be on a short leash, six feet or less, and owners must clean up after them.

Motor vehicles and all-terrain vehicles are prohibited on trails. Hunting and firearms are also prohibited on trails, as well as alcoholic beverages, illegal drugs and fireworks. Regulations against horses on trails drew the most comments at the meeting.

At last month's MCT board meeting, Denise Maxwell of rural Edwardsville asked that they reconsider the policy of not allowing horses on bike trails.

She said that the district has been unconcerned and hostile to horse owners.

Several trustees expressed concerns about allowing horses to share trails with bicyclists and pedestrians. "There are some real safety issues," Trustee Daniel Corbett said.

Who would clean up after the horses is also another concern, he added.

"I am not an anti-horse person," Corbett added. "I think they're fine animals at a distance."

Kane had said that safety to bicycle riders and pedestrians was the most important issue as well as the potential damage that horseshoes might do to the trails.

Police Blotter

Granite City Police

• RESISTING ARREST: Elizabeth Young, 20, of the 2100 block of Holmont Street, Alton, was charged with resisting arrest, obstructing a police officer and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. According to a police report, Young was with a group of people, which included at least one minor, at 24th Street about 1:45 a.m. Monday. She was taken into custody a short time later after cursing and allegedly trying to avoid being handcuffed. The report was sketchy and did not mention the use of alcohol.

• BATTERY: A woman was battered in a home along Wilson Park Drive Saturday evening.

According to a police report, the woman, 36, of Granite City was visiting a friend at a residence about 8 p.m. when a man and a woman who knew the owner burst into the house.

An argument ensued between the owner and the man and woman, during which time the 38-year-old woman was struck in the face several times by the intruding woman.

The battered woman left hurriedly, only to realize that she had forgotten her purse. When she returned, it was found missing.

The purse contained about $320 in cash, the report stated.

• BURGLARY: A burglary occurred in the 200 block of Grand Avenue between Aug. 24 and Aug. 28.

According to a police report, a CD player, a cassette player and a color television were stolen, all of which had a value of about $700.

Police have a suspect and are seeking burglary charges against a Fairmont City man.

• DUI: David Brown, 16, of the 20 block of Georgetown Drive, Granite City, was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

According to a police report, Brown was pulled over in a 1986 Chevrolet Nova about 2 a.m. Saturday on 21st and Madison. A breathalyzer test revealed he had a blood-alcohol content of .09. The legal limit in Illinois is .08.

• NUDE DAIRY: 20, of the 40 block of Briarhaven, Granite City, was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

According to a police report, Dailey was pulled over in a 1998 Ford Taurus was 12:30 a.m. Monday along St. Thomas Road. A breathalyzer test revealed that he had a blood-alcohol content of .10.

The report also stated that a passenger, John Espazza, 31, of Granite City, was charged with illegal transportation of alcohol.

• AGGRAVATED BATTERY: Eric Padilla, 20, of the 2000 block of Edison, Granite City, was charged with aggravated battery with a deadly weapon.

Ball was set a $50,000 by a Madison County judge.

According to a police report, the victim, 28, was walking down a street when he asked a group of people what time it was. Several persons allegedly cursed at him and ran in his direction, chasing him to the QuikTrip parking lot on Niedringhaus. Moments later, a red car pulled up. A person jumped out with a tire iron and also began chasing the victim, who ran into the store, where he was knocked to the ground after being struck with the object. He was struck a second time while prostrate.

The victim received a laceration to the head, but refused medical treatment when emergency medical personnel arrived.

• HATE CRIME: Charles Kleine, 23, of the 400 block of S. Clinton, Collinsville, was charged with two counts of a hate crime. An accomplice, Alfred Mahan, 19, of the 800 block of Grand Avenue, Granite City, was charged with one count of a hate crime.

Bond was set at $10,000 for Kleine and Mahan by a Madison County judge.

According to a police report, Kleine was pulled over about 11:20 p.m. Sunday along Washington Avenue and 30th Street for an incident that allegedly occurred earlier near Kingsdick Road.

As an officer exited his patrol car, the report stated, another car stopped behind his. A black man, 28, of Madison, exited the vehicle and told the officer that Kleine allegedly threw a bag of fast food at him which struck him in the face. The victim also said in the report that Kleine called him a racist name.

Kleine was taken into custody and was arrested for a similar offense that allegedly occurred in 1997.

During that incident, the victim, 19, a black man, said in a police report that he was walking along Mammoth Road about 11:30 p.m. when Kleine allegedly threw a plastic bag at him and called him a racist name. The man was not struck by the bag.

Message To Our Water Customers

Over the next two weeks, you may notice a slight, temporary change in the taste or odor of your tap water. It's no reason to worry.

Your water remains high quality and healthy.

On September 1, Illinois-American Water Company's East St. Louis and Granite City water treatment plants started their annual "free chlorine" flushing program. The maintenance program is conducted each fall and lasts approximately two weeks.

Our "free chlorine" flushing program prevents accumulation of nitrates in the water system and ensures continued delivery of high-quality water to our customers.

The program simply involves using a different form of chlorine in the water treatment process. We usually use chloramine, which is chlorine mixed with ammonia. Over the next two weeks, we will be using "free chlorine" which does not contain ammonia. At the end of the two-week program, both plants will switch back to chloramine.

Both free chlorine and chloramine are disinfectants commonly used by many water treatment plants. Water users can become accustomed to either form of chlorine. Chlorine may be more noticeable when a treatment plant switches from one form to another. We are not adding more chlorine to your water; just a different form of chlorine for two weeks only.

Answers to common questions from our customers:

* There is no need to boil water, purchase a water filter, or purchase bottled water. You can let some drawn tap water set a few hours and refrigerate. This will allow much of the chlorine to leave the water.

* Your baby's formula is fine. Continue mixing it with tap water.

* As with any flushing program, brief periods of discolored water are possible. This discoloration is residue that has settled into the bottom of the water main. If discoloration occurs, let your water run for a few minutes and it will clear up.

* Plumbing is not affected in your home or business.

* There's no effect on the pH balance of the water or the fluoride added to the water.

Scam artists now use ordinary numbers

Identity theft newest trend in crime; thieves obtaining bogus credit cards

By Barbara M. Cope
Staff writer

Thieves no longer need to pick your pocket to steal your money. That's the warning from Sgt. Scott Evers of the Edwardsville Police Department.

Identity theft is the newest wave in crime, Evers said, and a few crucial numbers can lead to more damage than any ordinary cat burglar ever caused.

The department has received several calls recently about telephone solicitors calling Edwardsville residents to "verify" crucial information such as credit card numbers, bank account numbers and, most importantly, Social Security numbers.

"We want to alert residents that these scams do happen," Evers said. "They say they need to verify these numbers, and then they can take them and go out and apply for new credit cards under your name and Social Security number. Then they go out and buy all kinds of things with your identity."

The end result is that the duped consumers are left to prove themselves innocent when credit card companies track down the person it thought it was doing business with the whole time. Often the thief is long gone, if he or she was even nearby in the first place. Evers said many cases originate several states away.

"We can't emphasize enough that you do not want to give that information out over the phone when you don't know who you're giving it to," Evers said, adding that he has seen cases of such theft that have ruined the financial records of several innocent people.

Other common scams involve "companies" making "courtesy calls" to sell a product that can immediately be reserved, processed or ordered by disclosure of a credit card number and supporting information.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has warned that Y2K fears have given con artists another tool they can use to scare consumers into revealing financial information. Posing as a bank employee, they ask victims to confirm—actually reveal—financial numbers under the guise of Y2K preparations. Then they obtain a new set of credit cards and head out to do a little holiday shopping.

"The important thing to remember is that your credit card company would already have that information," Evers said. "If they call you saying they are from your credit card company or bank, don't tell them your account numbers. Call them back using the phone numbers from your own records."

The FDIC has issued several guidelines to protect consumers from swindlers. They suggest walking away or hanging up the phone if:

- The offer is from an unfamiliar company, often without a street address or direct telephone number;
- The person or company won't give you the written details of the offer;
- You're asked to give cash, a check, or your credit card or bank account number before you receive goods or services;
- The salesperson uses high-pressure tactics or is

A resolution naming the Madison County State's Attorney's office as the legal counsel for the Madison County MCT.

Transit District was approved by the MCT Board during its Aug. 26 meeting.

The change is a result of the resignation of attorney Bill Beatty, who said he would not be able to handle the increasingly larger legal workload for the district.

"The agency is much bigger than when I started and you need more legal help," said Beatty, who has been the MCT attorney for the past six years.

"It's been fun, I think this place is second to none," Beatty continued. "It's a fine organization and I'm proud to have been a part of it."

MCT Managing Director Jerry Kane said Beatty may continue to handle some ongoing legal matters for the district.

Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine, who served as MCT chairman from 1986-88 before becoming state's attorney, said he and his office was "proud to be of help."

"This has always been a special place for me - the good it does for the community," Haine said.

Assistant State's Attorney Dean Sweet will handle most of MCT's legal matters.

In a related matter, the board gave Kane and the district's attorneys authority to resolve requests for easements on MCT bike trails.

Kane said the district receives at least one request a week - typically for water or electrical service - and allowing them to handle it without each month would be more efficient.

Granite City Mayor Ron Selph serves as the current MCT Board chair.

Coleman again gets life in mass murder

was granted his right to cross-examine Coleman regarding the incriminating statements, the Illinois Supreme Court said.

Williams' retrial is expected to take place later this year. He is eligible to face the death penalty.

Coleman was not eligible for the death penalty because the state waived the penalty during the first trial to try Williams and Coleman together.

On Tuesday, prosecutor Keith Jensen attempted to enter into evidence a purported letter written to him by Coleman in which Coleman allegedly offers to cooperate with the state's investigation of Williams.

However, Coleman's attorney, John Delaney of East Alton, said he never had seen the letter until just before Tuesday's hearing and successfully lobbied the judge to keep it out of evidence.

Delaney noted the letter was hand-printed, whereas every correspondence he has had with Coleman was in cursive.

"There is nothing to show who actually wrote it - including the many rats the state has had in this case," he said.

The second trial featured testimony against Coleman by three former jail mates, who said that Coleman had confessed his involvement in the mass murder to them.

Jensen said Coleman was the architect of a plan to steal drugs and money from one of the victims that led instead to the murders of four people in one trailer - David Thompson, Marion Jennings, Bedford Jennings and Cedric Gardner - and a man in a neighboring trailer, Jeff Mosby, who may have been a witness.

The state has maintained that Coleman killed Thompson, who lived in the first trailer, then ordered Williams and Towns to shoot the others.

Energy assistance programs now available

By Sanford J. Schmidt

People of modest means are being urged to check out federal energy assistance programs as more dollars appear in the pipeline.

The Madison County Community Development Energy Assistance Office just received $300,000 in emergency cooling funds to help low-income households with their electric service, according to Roselle Williams-Gardner, the program coordinator.

Community Development director Cheryl Jouett said the amount of federal money coming into the county for cooling and heating has been on the increase.

"Last year, we had to turn back $180,000," she said. "Many people may be eligible without realizing it, she said."

Williams-Gardner said emergency cooling assistance became available earlier this month after a serious heat wave in July.

"Cooling assistance will be provided for electric service, including emergency services payments for reconnection, fans and, in cases of medically necessitated cooling, air conditioners or air conditioner repair," Williams said.

Only households with senior citizens (age 60 or over), with children under age 6 or with medically necessitated cooling needs may apply.

Applicants must meet income guidelines. For a four-person household, the previous gross 30-day income may not exceed $1,712. A one-person household may earn no more than $839 to qualify, while an eight-person household may earn $2,876 and qualify.

Applications for emergency cooling assistance will be accepted through Aug. 31. The heating assistance program will be announced later.

People interested in emergency cooling assistance should call 692-6200.

New lights possible for GCHS athletics current one. I think the athletic department would be pleased to know that track events could be held under the lights if the track was renovated, as well," said Champion, who graduated from Granite City High School in 1961 and was a member of the 1948 GCHS state championship baseball team.

Champion organized a committee of 31 former alumni athletes to help tackle the project. They would like to see the system operational by spring 2000 as part of an overall plan to have a new lighting system installed at the tennis courts and one that would light up diamonds one through four at Wilson Park. Lighting at the baseball/softball complex would also be upgraded.

The cost for the project at the football field would come to $85,000, Champion said, and would be funded through individual contributions and business donations.

"This will be for the community and for the high school," Champion said. "We are hoping people will be able to use the track at night as a form of relaxation or exercise."

According to Wade Johnson of MUSCO, the lighting will not have an adverse effect on neighboring homes because it will reflect downward, directly toward the track and playing field.

"We can control the light's reflection to make sure it doesn't shine into a residential area," Johnson said. "We have the best products available."

Johnson will arrive at the football field Friday evening before the football Warriors home opener against Jerseyville with a sample light to demonstrate how efficient and effective it is.

"It's the same (system) used at Gateway (International Raceway in Madison) and at many sporting venues across the country," Johnson said.

The board has endorsed the project and will set up an activity fund. Checks can be payable to Granite City High School Lighting Fund or can be mailed to P.O. Box 1493, Granite City, 62040.

Carlyle Lake hosts international regatta ticipate on both counts. Carol was a crew member on a three-person team, and Scott was there to officiate. Their daughter, Jennifer, was crewing on another competing boat.

"It's a safe environment, very family-oriented," Carol Aljets said. That's what drew their family into sail-boating. The family bought their first sailboat in 1981, and they've spent just about all their free time on lakes, rivers and oceans since.

Though both the Aljets have skipped their own boats in races, they usually crew for other people. Carol Aljets said it's an expensive hobby.

"The joke is: it's a hole in the water, filled with fiberglass, that you pour money into," she said. The boats themselves are costly, depending on the size and the age of the boat. But the costs of new sails and other equipment that has to be replaced from time to time can begin to add up.

Sails, which the Aljets refer to as the engines of a sailboat, get torn, or just deteriorate with age.

"It's nothing for a main sail to cost as much as $8,000," Carol Aljets said. "And believe it or not, there are some people who buy new sails every season."

That's why Carol and Scott prefer to crew for other people's boats, they say. And it's a great relationship. "They can't go out and play, unless you go out to play with them," Carol Aljets said. And Carol plays hard at racing. As evidence, she shows the dozens of bruises up and down both legs, and even her arms.

"They're battle scars," she laughs. And she's proud of them.

The family atmosphere of sailboat racing goes beyond the biological connections. The Aljets said they never worried when any of their three children took off to sail with others.

"We love it so much, because our kids love it too," Scott Aljets said. Jane Allen, a racer from Detroit, agreed.

"I've grown up in this sport all my life," she said. "There are no couples, it's a group effort."

"In all the cities I've lived in, if there's a Lightning, I've got a friend," Allen said.

could be used as an interpretive museum focused on Route 66 and the ecology of the Mississippi River.

Most of the southern portion of the island - including Mosenthein and Gabaret island - would be "passive" recreation areas developed in conjunction with extensive ecological restoration.

It would include a network of mountain bike and equestrian trails through re-established wetland, woodland and prairie ecosystems. Primitive campgrounds, picnic areas and educational sites for classroom use would also be incorporated into the plans. Boat and fishing docks would also be part of the preliminary plan.

The first phase, at a cost of about $23 million, would include areas on both sides of I-270 that are now controlled by the city, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Waste Management Inc., Trainnet Inc. or that the owners have said they would be willing to sell.

Apprentices capture top union honors

Apprentices from the Southern Illinois Carpenters' Apprenticeship School recently captured top honors at the two-day Illinois State Apprenticeship Contest in Peoria.

Plaques and prize awards were presented during an awards banquet.

Michael Jenkins of Carpenters Local 480 in Freeburg won first-place honors in general carpentry; Rudy Dieffenbach, also of Local 480, earned second place in interior systems. Receiving third-place honors were Richard Engleke, Carpenters Local 433, Belleville, in general carpentry; Craig Auth, Carpenters Local 1997, Columbia, in mill cabinet; Tony Pashia, Carpenters Local 633, Granite City, in the millwright competition.

Contestants were selected after competing in a District Council Contest in June, with first and second place winners at that level advancing to the state contest where they competed against the best carpenters in Illinois.

A total of 34 contestants were selected from 3,000 carpenter apprentices state wide to participate in the state contest in general carpentry, interior systems, mill cabinet, floor covering and millwright competitions.

Within their respective divisions, the apprentices took part in an eight-hour manipulative project the first day, followed by a written exam on the following day.

Jitters set back Warriors CM Eagles prevail in Granite City's first match

Granite City opened the 1999 volleyball season Tuesday night at home against Bethalto Civic Memorial.

PREP VOLLEYBALL

After some initial nervousness, the Warriors put up a strong effort but fell short, losing to the Eagles 1-15, 15-11 and 13-15.

"Our first game, we had first-game jitters," Granite City coach Ruth Layton said. "You could see the way that comes out in the score. By the second game of the match, we were playing our game, we were playing much better together as a team, and we focused on what the task was."

Granite knotted the score at 11-11 in the third game but lost an official's decision that gave the ball back to the Eagles.

"We had a call go against us where I felt that there was a touch at the net, and he called no touch," Layton said. "So then it was side-out, and they were serving. Not that that made the match or lost the match, but it was important. We still came back to score two more points."

"In the third match, we were very

"We played with a lot of tenacity. We just couldn't put it all together in the third game of the match. We were right there with them, and if we would play them again, I know we would have a good chance to defeat them in two out of three games."

intense," Layton said. "We played with a lot of tenacity. We just couldn't put it all together in the third game of the match. We were right there with them, and if we would play them again, I know we would have a good chance to defeat them in two out of three games."

The Warriors got a high-octane performance from their outside thumpers and some quality assistance off the pine. "Carly Lasiter did a nice job of hitting," Layton said. "She had some nice hits. Jessica Worthen was on with her hitting. We had Christina Rother come off the bench and set very nicely for us."

Tonight the Warriors open the Southwestern Conference season against Alton.

"I do know that Alton was scouting us (Tuesday) night," Layton said. "They were in the stands watching us, marking our servers, seeing where our weak spot was with our passing. So we are going to have to be ready for them."

"We are going to prepare tonight in practice what we need to improve on. All the girls were asked to come back with three goals that they need to work on in practice individually."

"We definitely have to have higher percentage with our serving. We have to do better on our first pass. Our first pass has to be to our setter. Those are two of the areas I know we are going to have to work on and concentrate on."

After the Alton match tonight, the Warriors head to Highland Friday night to face a tough non-conference opponent.

"Highland is very strong," Layton said. "We are going to have very tough competition both nights."

Little things cost GCHS in season-opening loss

Team working out kinks for tilt against Jerseyville

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

The Granite City gridiron workers will have to forge their swords and come out swinging against Jerseyville in their home opener Friday night. The Warriors are coming off of a heartbreaking 7-0 season-opening loss to Cahokia last week, a defeat that saw them penetrate the Cahokia red zone repeatedly without scoring.

"We saw, in looking at the film, that we weren't that far off from doing the right things," Granite City head coach Nick Petrillo said. "We just made a few minor errors here and there, and the kids recognize what they did wrong."

"One thing about a loss is that your mistakes are kind of glaring. Even though they are small, they do stand out. The kids feel that they see what their adjustments need to be and recognize what we are trying to tell them."

"I think we have made the adjustments through the week where we will be fine down in the red zone. We think we are going to be able to put some points on the board."

Jerseyville boasts a fearsome running game that rambed over Jacksonville in the Panthers' 14-6 victory last week.

"Our game plan will be pretty similar to the Cahokia game, and that is that we want to con-rol the ball," Granite City offensive coordinator Daren DePew said. "That is something that we always want to do. If you can keep their offense off the field and control the ball, that's as good a defensive weapon as you can have. We would like to be able to maybe throw the ball a little more than we did against Cahokia, or at least look for some more opportunities to throw the ball."

"Our running game has got to be able to move the ball. Probably the biggest change would be getting into the endzone. We have looked at some things, some mistakes that we made against Cahokia that, if corrected, would

Warriors fall to 1-2

By Rick Broome

The Granite City tennis team shot the season off with a bang, knocking out (St. Louis) McCluer North 5-2 on Aug. 25. But then things turned a bit sour. The Warriors lost a 3-4 decision to Jerseyville on Aug. 26, and then failed to show against Triad, dropping an 0-8 shellacking to the Knights.

"We are 1-2," Granite City coach Linda Ames said. "We played well against McCluer North and we lost to Jerseyville 3-4, and we played very, very well. We did not play well against Triad. I don't know why, but we didn't. Some of the girls had trouble even winning a game, and they lost very quickly. I think we just need to practice better."

Don't discount Granite City soccer squad, Baker warns

Local legend sounds off about retirement, team's chances, issues concerning game

When it comes to high school soccer in the Metro East, Gene Baker's name naturally surfaces. Baker has become an icon for area high school soccer. The veteran Granite City High School coach is the state's all-time winningest boys coach. He also is among the state's top 10 all-time for victories in girls soccer.

With each passing year - Baker is now in his 27th season as the boys coach at Granite City - comes talk about his retirement.

"I could retire after this school year," said Baker, 55 years old. "I've got the time in and the age."

But will he? The coach isn't saying. "I'll just see how the year goes and how my knees hold up," Baker said.

What he does know is that Baker will be around for another season. He undoubtedly will have his Warriors among the top teams in the Metro East. Granite City was the top Class AA team in the Metro East last season, winning another Southwestern Conference championship and earning the top seed for the sectional tournament, but the Warriors were upset by Alton on penalty kicks in the sectional quarterfinal last year. That loss came after a 7-0 victory against Alton during the regular season.

"There are some who are discounting us this season," Baker said. "They're looking at Edwardsville and Collinsville as the teams to beat (in the Southwestern Conference). Alton also could be a factor in the conference. But, remember, it was us who won the conference last year."

Baker is banking on junior Mike Smith to have a big year. The big, strong forward had three goals in Granite City's season-opening 7-0 victory against Peoria Richwoods.

Bob Emig

As the coach of nine state championships in boys soccer at Granite, Baker remains among the legendary coaches in state history. He has outlasted many of his Metro East counterparts, including Bill Houck, who resigned after a long stint at Belleville West.

Houck's replacement at Belleville West was one of Baker's former players from the early 1960s, Jason Mathenia. For the past few seasons, Mathenia had been assisting Tim Strange at McKendree College.

"Tim Strange had some good things to say about him," Baker said of Mathenia. "I wish him well."

Among other former players of Baker's to become soccer coaches: Randy DeRousse at Evanston (Ill.) High School; Chris Ryan at Morris Junior College in the Chicago area; Mark Schwarzkopf at Edwardsville High; Sam Tate at Springfield Sacred Heart-Griffin; and David Fernandez, who coached at the high school level in Kentucky and Bellarmine College in Kentucky and presently one of the club coaches at Metro Futbol Club, headquartered in Edwardsville.

Never one not to voice his opinions, Baker offered the following observations on some current issues on the Illinois high school soccer scene:

"They're placing more of an emphasis on the five-second rule for the goalie," Baker said. "That, along with not wanting the goalie to celebrate with the rest of the players when his team scores, is an attempt to take the goalie out of the game. They believe those are stalling tactics. But they stop the clock, anyway, when a goal is scored, so why not have the goalie celebrate with his teammates."

"It all started with the pass-back rule and not allowing the goalie to use his hands, but that he must use his feet if the ball is passed back by a teammate intentionally with his foot. Well, I believe that doesn't slow the game down, but instead spreads out the game. At least, that's the way we used our goalie when he was allowed to pick up the ball with his hands."

Illinois has had a two-class system in soccer for the past two seasons. Baker sees pros and cons by adding a second class in 1997.

"I really like the old system," Baker said. "It was neat to see a small school do well in the playoffs. But, on the other hand, it had to be a thrill for a coach like Sam Tate to win the (Class A) state championship last year at Springfield Sacred Heart-Griffin."

"However, the split doesn't offer much diversity when it comes to the playoffs. We're used to playing the same old teams."

And for many of the area teams, that's not good news.

Triad wins

Triad opened its season with a 2-0 victory against Bethalto Civic Memorial. Travis Tillman and Joe Helton scored the Knights' goals.

Triad goalkeeper Caleb Lenglet stopped all seven of the shots he faced to post the shutout.

The victory was No. 497 in the career of Knights coach Mike Villa, who has a 32-13-2 record in three years at Triad after helped Kirkwood (Mo.) Vianney become a nationally recognized prep soccer power.

Knights will try to cut down on gridiron miscues

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

Triad High football coach Paul Bassler has a simple philosophy as the Knights prepare for their second game of the season: "Let's take care of ourselves." Bassler was disappointed with the Knights' number of turnovers during a 28-7 home-opening loss to Marion last Friday. Triad coughed up the ball seven times and lost possession four times.

Triad hopes to correct the problem Friday when it travels Effingham (1-0).

"What we have done in practice is try to concentrate on what we did wrong against Marion," Bassler said. "We looked at the entire game film. We broke it down. At practice, we've tried to correct all of our miscues - both blocking and handling the foot-

"We've obviously practiced against what we think we are going to see at Effingham. We are working hard at trying to do what we want to do right and not so much on how we are going to change things against Effingham."

"We do have some other wrinkles we are going to put in but we want to keep it the same. Effingham beat Mahomet-Seymour last week. They are a good football team. We are going to have to play a heck of a lot better than we did last week."

While all the mistakes were a bit unsettling for the coaching staff, Bassler knows the miscues can be corrected. The second-year head coach knows patience is important.

"We played nine sophomores throughout the game," Bassler said. "We're a little bit young so the coaching staff and I have to be a little patient with them and realize they are going to make mistakes because of our age at certain positions. The seniors also need to pick it up a little bit and play more to their potential."

"All the mistakes are correctable. I guess that is the positive. We feel it is nowhere out of control."

Nick Smock led the Triad offense in defeat. He carried the ball 16 times for 116 yards against Marion. Smock also scored the Knights' lone touchdown of the game on a 5-yard run in the second quarter.

"Nick Smock was kind of a shining star for us," Bassler said. "That was a good star."

Erik Hansen added 48 yards on five carries.

Tennis team hopes to get on track from their youngest member.

"We are very impressed with Tiffany Rath," Ames said. "She is a freshman and she is playing third singles. She played for three-and-a-half hours at Jerseyville and lost a very tough three-set match (6-4, 3-6, 5-7 to Kelly Church). She split against Triad also. She is 1-2, but she is really - as far as dedication and really playing her heart out - the one who is impressing us the most."

The No. 1 doubles team of Kathryn Isom and Beth Seibold are on track as well. The duo beat McCluer's Christina Halski and Julie Schroeder, 7-6, 6-2, then smacked Jerseyville's Claire Rose and Stacey Goodwin, 6-0, 6-1. But like the rest of the team, they had trouble against Triad, falling in straight sets to Jodie Hitz and Liz Lorentzen, 5-7, 0-6.

"Isom and Seibold are 2-1," Ames said. "They are playing very well. They just had kind of an off day against Triad, and that's going to happen. But they are doing very well."

The Warriors must bring more energy and determination to the courts to get back the form they showed against McCluer.

"I think the girls really need to set their hearts and minds to playing," Ames said. "They need to practice well, and hopefully, that will carry over into winning matches. Losing isn't good, but at least when you try hard you can accept losing a little bit better. We just didn't have a good day at Triad."

"We are a little hurt right now because Jolene (Harris) hurt her knee Saturday playing soccer. She is going to be out probably for two or three weeks. That really takes some of our depth away. We would like for Tiffany to be playing four, but with Jolene out, she has to play three. Jolene is a pretty big loss for us right now."

The Warriors faced O'Fallon Wednesday night before heading to Edwardsville on Friday.

Warriors preparing for Jerseyville

have helped us in the red zone. Also we are looking at some other plays that may help us get there. It is something that we have examined. We are also working hard on our kicking game. That was an area that we knew needed some improvement, but we think that this week we have made some more strides to improve that."

Although there are lessons to be learned from the opening game, Petrillo said new challenges await the Warriors.

"Jerseyville is going to be quite a bit different from Cahokia in a lot of ways," Petrillo said. "Number one, they are very disciplined on offense and defense. They are very well-coached, and that's not to say that Cahokia isn't well-coached. They follow their assignments to the T. They don't make mistakes that hurt themselves, and they can't afford to. Although they have good team speed, they don't have anything that compares to Cahokia in terms of team speed."

"Their greatest asset is that they know what they are supposed to do, where they are supposed to be, and what their job is once they get there. They are a good-hitting ballclub, they have some pretty good hitters on both offense and defense."

Coming off a loss and sitting on the verge of Southwestern Conference contests,

Nick Petrillo
Granite City coach

the Warriors know they need to hitch up their straps and fight through to get on the winning track.

"I've said right from the very beginning that this group of kids is a great group of kids to work with, whether they go 0-9 or 9-0," Petrillo said.

"They are pretty self-motivating. You don't have to do a whole lot to get them fired up and inspired. These kids are disappointed in last week's loss. They really felt that they should have won the ballgame, and they are really hungry for that first victory. You are going to have Jerseyville right there, and I think they are going to come right out ready to play."

FROM LAST WEEK

WINSTON CUP SERIES
 It was vintage Bristol. Dale Earnhardt's final-lap shove of Terry Labonte touched off a multi-car accident that allowed Earnhardt to steal a victory. The second- and third-place finishers, Jimmy Spencer and Ricky Rudd, had their best finishes of the season.
 Dale Jarrett took a hit in the points. Thanks to being involved in two accidents, he lost 101 points to runner-up Mark Martin. Same old story for Tony Stewart: He won the pole and led the most laps but had to settle for a fifth-place finish.

BUSCH GRAND NATIONAL
 Matt Kenseth answered Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s victory the previous week with a win at Bristol in the Food City 250. This two-way battle for the series championship is the best thing going in NASCAR.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCK SERIES
 After numerous taps on the door, Mike Bliss of Milwaukee, Ore., finally kicked it in with a victory on the road course at Heartland Park Topeka. All in all, it was not a bad week for Bliss, who will apparently move up to Winston Cup next year in a car fielded by Jack Birmingham.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Dale Earnhardt vs. Terry Labonte
 Earnhardt said it was unintentional, but his last-lap bump of Labonte gave him the Goody's 500 at Labonte's expense. It wasn't the first time, either. In 1995, Earnhardt hit Labonte in the final turn of the final lap, but Labonte crossed the finish line first ... sideways. This time Labonte said, "The next time, Earnhardt had better have his bells on tight."

NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton gives his opinion: "Did Earnhardt do it on purpose? Why of course he did. On the one hand, he is the greatest driver of his generation, recognized in every quarter for his astonishing skill. On the other hand, we're supposed to believe that in this one instance, he didn't mean it? C'mon. He can't have it both ways."

By Monte Dutton
 NASCAR This Week

Ricky Rudd heads down the stretch with an incredible streak endangered. Rudd has won at least one race in 16 straight seasons, the longest current streak in NASCAR.

Rudd debuted on the Winston Cup Series when he was 18 years old. He won for the first time when he was 26. At various times he has driven for car owners Bill Gardner, Richard Childress, Bud Moore, Kenny Bernstein and Rick Hendrick, but in 1994 he went out on his own. As a combination driver-car owner, Rudd has added five more years on his winning streak.

AGE: Will be 43 on Sept. 12
HOMETOWN: Born and raised in Chesapeake, Va., lives in Cornelius, N.C.
WIFE: Linda
CHILD: Landon Lee (5)
CAR: No. 10 Tide Ford Taurus, owned by Rudd Performance Motorsports
RECORD: 650 starts, 24 poles, 20 wins, 151 top-five finishes, 300 top-10s, more than $16 million in career earnings
FIRSTS: Start (March 2, 1975, at Rockingham), pole (April 24, 1981, at Martinsville), win (June 5, 1983, at Riverside)
HOW DOES IT FEEL RACING WHEN THERE IS SO MUCH UNCERTAINTY SURROUNDING YOUR FUTURE? "It's no big secret we're working pretty hard on sponsorship right now, and we're doing everything we can to get set for 2000 and the future. Rudd Performance Motorsports is a good outfit, a good race team, and we want to keep everybody together here. We can do a lot for a sponsor, and we have some really good days ahead of us."
WHAT IS YOUR TIMETABLE? "We're talking with three pretty good (potential sponsors) right now. I've pretty well figured we have to have something set by the middle of September or so, or we're going to need to go ahead and shut the place down and move on. I don't think we're going to have to do that, but we want to be set or really, really close to set by then."

John Clark/NASCAR This Week
 Veteran driver Ricky Rudd is in search of a sponsor.

HOW TOUGH WOULD IT BE TO SHUT THE TEAM DOWN? "Business-wise, it won't be a hard decision if we reach that point and no sponsorship is there. Emotionally, yeah, it would be pretty tough. We've heard from a whole lot of fans since it became obvious we were sponsor-hunting. It's gratifying and it's almost surprising how much people are behind us and pulling for us. I think people relate to us better than they do to some of the big teams. Some of the bigger teams have become like factories. We're more like the family farm. ... Still, our goal is not just to be out here to be out here, just to make laps. We want to stay competitive. If we race, we're going to be in a position to be competitive."

Your Turn

Letters From Our Readers

Dear NASCAR This Week,
 One of (the) rules states that "an injured driver must be able to get in and out of his car on his own." This is in case of an emergency situation. Can you tell me why we have seen ... crew members lifting Mark Martin into his car. I thought rules were made for all drivers to follow.
 Tom's River, N.J.

The operative phrase is "must be able." In NASCAR's judgment, Martin is capable of getting in and out. His crew members help him because he is in pain, not because he can't do it on his own.

Dear NASCAR This Week,
 Can you please tell me what happened to the bearded gentleman (who) always ushered the winning NASCAR drivers into victory lane? I don't think I have seen him at all this season...
 B.A. Hoffstot
 Middletown, Pa.

Bill Brodrick no longer works for Unocal/Tosco, the fuel provider for NASCAR events. He still occasionally appears at Cup races, but no longer acts as informal manager of victory-lane activities.

Dear NASCAR This Week,
 When I was watching the Watkins Glen race ... I noticed (that) ... as Jeff Gordon celebrated his victory, he thanked the Lord for being with him. ... I think that is great for our young sportsmen. We need more of this.
 Jane Trexler
 Gold Hill, N.C.

Thanks for your comments.

Who's Hot... Who's Not

HOT: Dale Earnhardt should have won Michigan and didn't; shouldn't have won Bristol and did.
NOT: Good news for Darrell Waltrip: He made the field. Bad news: He was the first one to bump Terry Labonte.

Sailing at Carlyle Lake

Story and pictures by Curtiss A. Hartley
Staff Writer

Perhaps one of the best kept secrets of Southwestern Illinois is sailing on Carlyle Lake, in Clinton County, only about an hour from most metro-east communities.

Sailboats on the lake range from the tiny one-person Lasers, and three-person Lightnings, to catamarans, cabin boats and even 10-crew yachts.

The Carlyle Sailing Association and the Carlyle Yacht Club are each nestled into modern, well-kept harbors along the western shore of the nearly 30-year-old lake.

Carol Aljets, a first-grade teacher at N. O. Nelson School in Edwardsville, has been sailing with her family for nearly two decades. And they've been members of the CSA almost as long.

"We were looking for a family hobby," Aljets said. "And we specifically looked for something athletic." She said she and her husband Scott were both athletes in college, so it was important for them to find an activity they could enjoy along with their three small children.

"A friend was into sailing, and invited us to go," Aljets said. "The first weekend there was no wind. The second weekend there was a little wind. The third weekend was beautiful," she said. After that, they were hooked.

"The fourth weekend, he was out of town, and we started looking for a boat," Aljets said. They bought their first boat, a used "Y-Flyer," for $1,700 in 1981.

"We had years of fun on that boat," Aljets said. "We would pack up on weekends and head to the lake. It's a safe environment, very family oriented," she said of the sailing club.

Her husband, Scott, is a member of the board of directors for the Carlyle Sailing Association. He's proud of the facility at Carlyle Lake.

"This is, for sailing in the Midwest, from Chicago to Texas, and from the Appalachians to the Rockies, this is the premier sailing facility."

Scott Aljets said that when the Corps of Engineers began work on building the lake in the late 1960's, a group of boaters from the Valley Sailing Association, who sailed at Alton Lake on the Mississippi River, heard about the new lake, and convinced the Corps to help them build their marina.

Members got to help with the planning of the layout and features of their harbor, since the lake was just in the construction stages, Scott Aljets said. Now, the Carlyle Sailing Association has a long-term lease for the property through the Corps of Engineers and the Federal Department of the Interior.

Lyle Burridge is one of the old-timers who came over from the Valley Sailing Association. His family lives in Ladue, Missouri, but they still come to Carlyle, Illinois to sail. In fact, Burridge is the secretary/treasurer for the CSA.

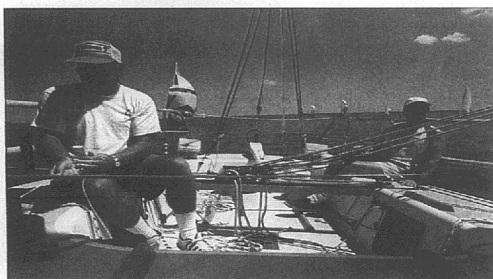

"I used to sail Lightnings, but now I own a Laser, because I don't have to find crew members," Burridge said. "I'm not as gun-ho as I used to be."

Burridge said that a group of sailors from the Valley Sailing Association came to Carlyle lake when it opened in the late 1960's. At first they were a division of the VSA. But after about a year, it was decided to form their own Carlyle Sailing Association. Burridge has been involved from the start.

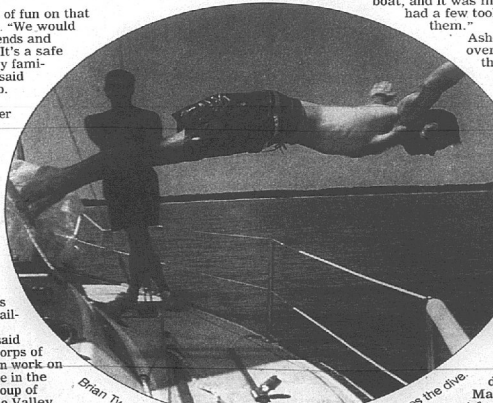

Many of the sailing families at Carlyle lake have been at it for decades. And Crews prepare their "Lightning Class" sailboats for the three crew races.

Don Corbett of St. Charles helps control some of the sail line, while the owner of "Blade Runner" Doug Draper handles the tiller.

The crew works together intuitively during a race, trimming sails in minute measures, to get the most speed and power from the winds.

Brian, Carol, and Tony sit on the edge of the "Blade Runner" to counter the wind on the sails, in order to keep as little of the hull in the water for better speed.

the age of active sailors at the CSA ranges from 10 to about 77.

Art Ashcroft is another member of the CSA who has been sailing almost longer than he can remember.

"I've been sailing for over 30 years," Ashcroft said. "My son and daughter and me used to race at the Valley Sailing Association up at Alton."

In fact, Ashcroft used to build his own racing boats.

"It's just something I wanted to do," he said. "I found out you could buy plans to build your own boat, and it was more economical if you had a few tools and knew how to use them."

Ashcroft said he's graduated over the years from racing the Lightnings, to ever bigger boats. "Now I have a 30-foot Hunter, with sleeping quarters for six people, a stove and hot and cold water. Before that I had a 27-footer, and before that, a 22-foot boat."

Burridge fondly recalls that years ago he and others at Alton Lake would build eight-foot prams called "El Toro's" and race them on the Mississippi in the winter time.

"If the temperature was 32-degrees and there was water on the lake, we would race," he said.

"The Aljets family is completely immersed in sailing. When Carol Aljets opens her calendar, almost every weekend from May through November is marked out for sailing regatta's at Carlyle Lake and throughout the USA. In fact, she had to be sure to block out a weekend between races for her son's wedding in June. Carol Aljets participates as a crew-person in about 120 races each year, she said. "I've had about 80 races so far this year," she said. "I had 180 races one year—I think in 1988."

Scott Aljets enjoys racing as well, but he's on the board of the CSA, and spends much of his time as an official watching over the many races at the lake. All three of their children grew up to be great sailors, they said.

"People are always looking for good crews," Scott Aljets said. "That's why Carol is always getting called. She's a teacher, so she has her summers off. She's available and experienced," he said.

As the three Aljets children grew up, they became known as good sailors.

"We turned into what we laughingly called, 'Aljets Crew Service,'" Scott Aljets said.

"Mark was 80 pounds, and Scott was 205 pounds," Carol Aljets said. "People would call and ask for a crew member of a certain weight, and we've got him," she said.

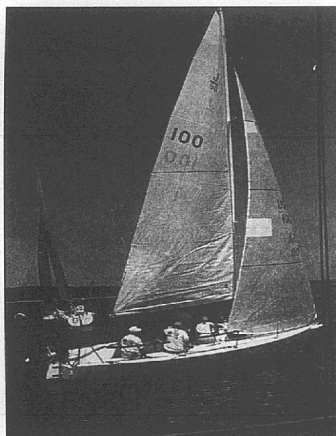

All three of the Aljets children still sail, although Christine, the oldest, hasn't sailed for about two years. "We think she's mad at us. We dislocated her shoulder the last time," Carol Aljets said.

Jennifer Aljets, 23, is a manager at Famous Barr in Alton, and Mark, 21, is a senior at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

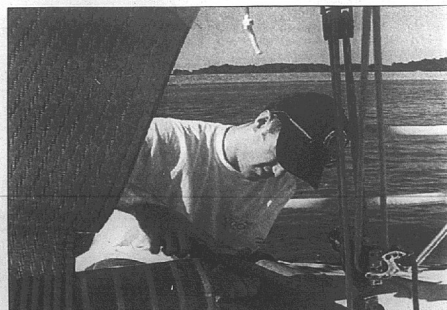

As Scott and Carol reminisce about their family's experiences and try to recount times and events, they laugh about the fact that they remember the ages of their children at certain stages by connecting the memories to boats they've owned, or racing events that were memorable.

Though they've owned a few sailboats of their own, the family's sailing hobby has been fairly cheap, they said, because they get to enjoy other people's boats when they crew for them.

Since it takes several people to sail a boat, the Aljets family enjoys crewing for others. "They can't go out and play unless you go out to play with them," Carol Aljets said.

Competing boats "tack" in different directions during the race, jockeying for the best position and wind.

Brian works on fine-tuning a new sail as "Blade Runner" cruises into position for the race.

Prehistoric Lifeways set for Sept. 11-12 at Mounds

Choctaw Indians slated to perform

By Val McDowell
Staff writer

Even though summer is drawing to a close, plenty of activities remain for area residents to enjoy.

In Collinsville, the Cahokia Mounds have a fascinating array of educational and fun activities lined up for September.

The largest event in September is Prehistoric Lifeways, which will take place on Sept. 11 and 12 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Prehistoric Lifeways will include performances by the Choctaw Indians of Tenn. and entertainers from the Haskell Indian Nations University in Kansas, who will perform traditional Indian dances at 1 and 3 p.m. each day.

"This is an annual event, the third time we've done this and it's something that everyone really enjoys," said Bill Isenminger, spokesman for the Mounds.

Isenminger said the free two day event is open to the public and there is something there that will appeal to everyone.

"The participants are mostly people who have learned ancient Indian crafts, some will give demonstrations on how some of the items used for the crafts were made," he said.

There will be beadwork demonstrations, dressmaking, split-cane baskets, and blow-gun making in the works for interested parties.

Isenminger said the Miami Indians of Indiana will set up a wigwam village to demonstrate different crafts from a culture from over 1,000 years ago.

There will also be crafters with arrowheads and spearpoints, bows and arrows, twine and rope from natural fibers, fingerwoven shashes and belts, atlatl spearthrowers, pottery vessels, gourd containers, bone and shell ornaments and tanned deer hides.

The young ones can make pendants from copper foil of "God's eyes" with sticks and yarn for a 50-cent fee.

"God's eyes were popular with Indians in the south, and in general, it could be used for good luck, and it could keep the evil spirits away also," Isenminger said.

Also in conjunction with the event, the Missouri Atlatl Association will hold its annual competition and demonstration of the instrument, which served as a predecessor to the bow and arrow before the year 500 AD, Isenminger said.

This will take place both days from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Cahokia Mounds Interpretive Center is located at 30 Ramey Drive.

For more information on Prehistoric Lifeways and other fall events at Cahokia Mounds, call 346-5160.

Mascoutah woman wins spelling bee sponsored by Senior Olympics

Athletic competition for the Senior Olympics was mixed with some exercise for the mind Tuesday.

The Southwestern Illinois Regional Senior Olympics Spelling Bee was held aboard the Casino Queen riverboat, docked on the Mississippi River at East St. Louis.

"It went very well," said Cheryl Marshall, a coordinator for the Senior Olympics. "Everyone was very pleased. At lunchtime, I heard many of the participants talk about next year, too. So I know they were pleased with the event overall."

The first-place gold medal winner was Norma Cunningham of Mascoutah, 81. Cunningham, who will compete in the 80-84 age bracket during the sports events, won the competition after 111 words by spelling the word "odoriferous" correctly.

Marilyn Hotto of Columbia and Robert Miller of Belleville tied for second place. Each received the silver medal.

This is the second year for the spelling bee, and the Casino Queen has served as host for the event both times.

"It was great. They're wonderful hosts," Marshall said.

Casino Queen officials gave the participants and their guests complimentary coffee, juice and pastries, and they were welcome to join the lunch buffet.

There were 24 participants in this year's spelling bee, ranging in age from 50 to 81. Marshall said there were 19 or 20 last year, and she was pleased with the increase in participation.

The official "pronouncer" of the words was Sam Stemm, the general manager of WGBZ Radio in Alton. There also were three judges who had copies of the word list to verify spelling of words.

Serving as judges were Gary Gray, provost of the Granite City campus of Belleville Area College; Vasil Eftimoff, a member of the Illinois Council on Aging and a retired school administrator; and Jo Ellen Kirkpatrick, manager of Medicare Marketing for PremierPlus.

Gray, Eftimoff and Kirkpatrick also judged the contest last year. Marshall said Olympic coordinators were pleased with the job the judges did last year and asked them to return.

The rest of the Senior Olympics begins on Thursday, Sept. 9, at 8 a.m. and ends on Sept. 12.

There are a wide variety of events in which 323 seniors will participate.

Temperance Union elects officers

The August meeting of the Granite City Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held on Aug. 24 in the Fellowship Hall of the Central Free Methodist Church at Pontoon Beach.

The group enjoyed a potluck supper before the president, Elizabeth Finley, called the meeting to order. Arthur Cariss gave a devotional.

Four youths attended the Youth Temperance Council Camp this summer which was held near Springfield. Rebecca Martin gave a report of the camp. Doris and Vernon Brown gave a report of the National Woman's Temperance Union Convention, which was held in Buffalo, N.Y.

Officers were elected for the new year, which begins in September. The following were elected, president, Elizabeth Finley; vice president, Vera Lynn; secretary, Linda Martin; treasurer, Vernon Brown; Christian outreach, Arthur Cariss; social service, Ann Thomas; legislation/citizenship and education, Larry Hutchison; public relations, Charles Finley; home protection, Priscilla James; honorary members, Douglas James.

The next meeting will be held on Sept. 27 at 6:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

Have a careful plan before harvesting your timber

Timber growing in the woods is like money in the bank. But for many people, selling the timber puts them at the mercy of others. Potential buyers may know more about the timber than the landowners themselves. The result: landowners may suffer a financial loss, leaving them sour on the idea of selling timber again in the future, according to Mike Bolin, University of Illinois Extension forester.

Therefore, before jumping into a timber sale, Bolin said to consider the following points:

Bolin also is a crafter of wreaths and spears, and arrows, twine from natural fibers, and shashes and belts, and throwers, pottery, and containers, bone ornaments and other items.

One thing one can make from copper foil is a 50-cent fee. Eyes were popular in the south, and it could be used for spirits away also," said.

Don't be pressured or get in a hurry. If a timber buyer expresses unsolicited interest in your timber, you can assume the timber has value. So don't give in to high-pressure techniques or insinuations that the buyer will only be working in the area for a short time, cautioned Bolin.

professional forester evaluate your timber and the buyer's offer.

Know what you have to sell. Can you identify the trees in your woodland? Do you know how to measure them to determine their board foot volume? Can you identify trees that are ready for harvest? Do you know how to determine what types of products can be cut from these trees? Are you familiar with the markets for timber in your area?

If your answer is "no" to most of these questions, you're at a real disadvantage when it's time to evaluate offers made on your timber, said Bolin. Seek help from either a consulting forester or a district forester from the Illinois Department of Natural Resources.

The district forester can provide limited timber sales assistance — taking an inventory of your woodland, marking the trees for sale and providing a list of licensed timber buyers. A list of recent prices for timber throughout Illinois is available from your district forester, the Division of Forest Resources office in Springfield, or your local Cooperative Extension Service office.

While there is a fee for the services of a consulting forester, the expertise they provide in merchandising your timber frequently offsets the fee and, Bolin added, can put money in your pocket. In addition to providing the same help as a district forester, a consulting forester can determine fair market value of your trees, recommended buyers or loggers, solicit bids, and act as your agent during harvest. Some will also help you with income tax preparation as it relates to the timber sale.

If you elect to hire a consulting forester, ask for references and check with other landowners to verify their satisfaction with the forester's assistance. The Illinois Division of Forest Resources maintains a list of consulting foresters practicing in Illinois. Their address is 600 N. Grand Ave. West, Springfield, IL 62706. The telephone number is (217) 782-2261.

Consider your tax liability. A timber sale can generate a sizable income. Would this possibly affect your income tax bracket? If a timber sale would put a tax burden on you in the present tax year, consider selling part of your timber now and the remainder in the next tax year. However, you might not receive as high a price for your timber if you choose to do this.

Know the process. Knowledge is power, so they say. But when it comes to selling your timber, knowledge may also be profit.

Owning a woodland with valuable timber can be a meaningful investment for your future. But, when the time comes to sell that timber, you may not know how to go about it properly. By being an informed seller, you can ensure your rights, understand your responsibilities and maximize your opportunity for profit, said Mike Bolin, forester with the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service.

According to Bolin, the following steps take you through the selling process.

1. Advertise your timber and solicit bids. To receive a competitive price, advertise the sale and prepare and mail a bid announcement to potential buyers. The bid announcement should include:

- the timber owner's name, address and phone number;
- a legal description of the property and a map showing directions to the property;
- a listing of the timber for sale by board foot volume and by each species;
- the type of sale (sealed bid, auction);
- a closing date for bids;
- the time period allotted for buyers to inspect the timber and whether prior permission is needed (six weeks prior to the sale date is an acceptable time limit);
- the location, date and starting time of the sale;
- if any bid deposit is required with the bid;
- how full payment is to be made;
- and where a copy of the sale contract can be reviewed.

It is important to include this statement: "The owner reserves the right to refuse any and all bids." Without it, Bolin cautioned, you may be forced to sell to someone with whom you don't want to deal.

Solicit as many bids as possible, he added, for competition generally brings a more equitable price. To legally buy timber in Illinois, a buyer must possess a current, valid license obtained through the Illinois Department of Natural Resources' Division of Forest Resources. A list of these buyers is available through the Division of Forest Resources or your local district forester.

All offers should be made by sealed bid that will not be opened until the sale day. That way, buyers will know to make their highest bid because there's no opportunity to change it.

For a sample copy of a timber sale bid announcement, write to: Extension Forester, W-503 Turner Hall, 1102 S. Goodwin Ave., Urbana, IL 61801 or call (217) 885-5778.

2. Administer the sale day. Start the sale on time. Open the bids and read them aloud so buyers present will know what their competitors bid. If the offered price and buyer are agreeable to you, and you've consulted with your forester or legal adviser, announce the successful buyer to those present.

If none of the offers are acceptable to you, announce that you refuse all bids. If a deposit was required, immediately return the deposits to unsuccessful buyers present.

Mail the other deposits right after the sale concludes.

3. Negotiate the timber sale contract. You don't want an oral or handshake agreement. A written contract serves your best interest. Everything in the contract is negotiable and should be spelled out. Make sure the contract protects both you and the buyer. Remember, the more restrictions you place on the timber buyer (and ultimately the logger), the fewer buyers will be interested. There are times when the buyer and seller cannot agree on some provisions and the sale is not consummated.

Do not enter into a timber deed arrangement, which is when the timber is deeded over to the buyer to dispose of as he or she sees fit, Bolin warned. This is seldom in your best interest.

4. Receive compensation prior to harvest. There are many stories to be shared, Bolin said, but suffice it to say that it is good business to receive payment in full prior to any trees being harvested.

5. Submit the 4 percent harvest fee. This harvest fee, required on any timber sold in Illinois, is paid by the seller. The harvest fee is 4 percent of the selling price negotiated by the buyer and seller. The buyer must process the paperwork and submit the harvest fee to the IDNR's Division of Forest Resources in a timely manner.

This revenue funds the cost-share payments made to forest landowners enrolled in the Illinois Forestry Development Act.

6. Inspect the harvesting operation. Your (or your forester's) responsibility does not end when the contract is signed and you receive payment, according to Bolin. Periodic inspection of the harvest is necessary to ensure the contract is being upheld. Remember, it is easier to get contract infractions rectified while the buyer/logger is still on the job.

You should inform adjoining neighbors that timber will be harvested from your property. If a neighbor's woods adjoins yours, make sure the property lines are clearly marked and the buyer and logger know the location of these lines. By familiarizing yourself with the timber sale process, Bolin said, periodic harvests can be rewarding and often financially satisfying.

Add some easier-to-grow, lower-maintenance plants to your home's landscape

By Angie Eckert Correspondent

If you are looking for easy-to-grow, low-maintenance plants to add to your landscape, consider these plants. They are known for their ornamental value as well as their outstanding performance in the Metro East Area. Once established, they require little maintenance and are relatively disease and pest free. Look for these star performers at your local garden center or nursery when selecting new plants for your landscape next spring.

Purple wave petunia is a low-growing, spreading annual, which blooms continuously throughout the growing season. It tolerates full sun, requires little water and grows well in annual beds and large containers. Purple wave was named an All-American Selection for its consistently outstanding performance. Moonbeam coreopsis is a favorite of many perennial gardeners. It is extremely drought-tolerant, requiring little to no watering once established. Coreopsis returns each year with an abundant display of delicate white flowers atop its feathery foliage.

Unlike most perennials, it flowers all summer long. Looking for a small plant to grow in full shade? Consider sweet woodruff (Galium odoratum). Sweet woodruff grows 8 to 10 inches tall and is especially attractive as ground cover or when planted in groups of three to five. Its dainty white flowers emerge in early spring and its interesting leaves persist until frost.

SIUE to begin 15th season of Arts & Issues

University to host series of seven quality entertainment and provocative presentations

Arts & Issues, Southern Illinois University Edwardsville's series of quality entertainment and provocative presentations, begins its 15th annual season with the Saint Louis Symphony Orchestra next week.

The concert also kicks off the SLSO's Millennium season. Associate principal Conductor David Loebel will conduct this Grammy award-winning orchestra in the Morris University Center's Meridian Ballroom at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday. A few tickets are still available.

Season subscriptions for the entire Arts & Issues series, which includes seven events, are on sale and offer a discount for general admission to some of the most exciting programming in the region. Following a proven format, the Arts & Issues tradition continues to emphasize quality in programming.

"Arts & Issues has become well known for bringing outstanding artists and distinguished speakers to the area," Richard Walker said, coordinator of the series.

The season continues with the witty and funny Chenille Sisters who will appear at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 24 in SIUE's Katherine Dunham Hall theater. With nine albums and numerous awards, the sisterly trio conjures memories of the Andrews and Boswell sister groups, yet presents a unique song writing and performance variety.

Mark Russell appears at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 15 in the Meridian Ballroom. Russell's no-holds-barred political commentary, highlighted with droll one-liners and bouncy tunes, refuses to take politicians as seriously as they take themselves.

The Arkansas Repertory Theatre returns to SIUE with a production of the Broadway musical hit "Blues in the Night," at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 3 and 4 in Dunham Hall theater. Featuring songs by the legendary Bessie Smith, Alberta Hunter, Duke Ellington and many others, "Blues in the Night" is a celebration of survival.

Known as the Olivier of the Latino World, Edward James Olmos comes to campus for Arts & Issues at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 17, also in the Meridian Ballroom. Using photographs, essays, music and art, Olmos profiles famous and not-so-famous Latinos to emphasize the value of diversity.

"For 15 years we have been meeting the needs of the communities both at SIUE and in the surrounding region."

Coordinator of the series

Performing "The Magic Flute," the Salzburg Marionettes come to campus at 7:30 p.m. on March 9 for a presentation of Mozart's famous opera. Appearing in the Meridian Ballroom, the marionettes will perform in German accompanied by glorious music, sets and lighting.

The line-up of distinguished speakers continues with George Gallup, renowned pollster, who will appear at 7:30 p.m. on April 13, in Meridian Ballroom. Gallup also provides marketing and management research, consulting and training to the world's largest corporations.

Individual ticket sales began this week. Admission includes parking in the lots behind the Morris University Center or Dunham Hall theater.

'Sixth Sense' tops box office for fourth week straight

The Bruce Willis-starring thriller becomes the third movie in history to make $20M for 4 weeks running

"Sixth Sense" tops box office for fourth straight week

The spirits still moved movie-goers this weekend to "Sixth Sense," making it the third movie in history after "Titanic" and "Phantom Menace" to bring in more than $20 million for four straight weeks, according to industry estimates Sunday.

The ghostly thriller starring Bruce Willis as a therapist treating a boy who talks to the dead grossed $20.1 million, now totaling $138.9 million after four weeks.

Buena Vista captured the two top spots in a weekend crowded by eight new movies.

The studio's action thriller "13th Warrior," starring Antonio Banderas as a diplomat roped into battle in 10th century Europe, grossed $10.3 million in its debut.

The last studio to have both the No. 1 and No. 2 slots was 20th Century Fox with "Titanic" and the re-release of "Grease" in 1998.

The box office coup came as no surprise to studio officials who delayed the opening of "13th Warrior" for two weeks.

"It seemed like a fabulous time," said Chuck Viane, president of Buena Vista distribution. "There was nothing competitive for our genre at all."

Viane, though, expected some tough competition next week with the debut of "Chill Factor," starring Cuba Gooding Jr. and Skeet Ulrich.

With so many movies debuting this weekend, it was tough for any one film to garner a strong following, said Paul Dergarabedian, president of Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc., which tracks movie ticket sales.

"They can't all do well," he said. "The favorites are holding well enough so it is tough for the newcomers."

"The Muse," the highly publicized comedy starring Albert Brooks and Sharon Stone, opened with $4.2 million for seventh place.

However, Dergarabedian said "The Muse" is a movie for the older crowd who do not typically run to the box office on the opening weekend.

"If it catches on it could pick up," he said.

The weekend's two other movies, "In Too Deep," an action film starring Omar Epps and LL Cool J, placed eighth with $4.1 million, and "The Astronaut's Wife," with Johnny Depp, was 10th with $4 million.

"Sixth Sense" has dominated the box office because "people are really taken by that movie and can't get enough of it," Dergarabedian said.

The film also had timing on its side, he said.

"Typically summer blockbusters don't come out in August," Dergarabedian said. "So the timing for 'Sixth Sense' was perfect."

It didn't have to compete against summer blockbusters like "Star Wars: Episode I: The Phantom Menace," "Notting Hill," or even "Wild Wild West," he said.

"The Blair Witch Project," meanwhile, slipped from No. 5 and tied for eighth place with $4.1 million. The low-budget shocker has grossed $128 million, since it opened in wide release five weeks ago, making it one of the most successful independent films in history.

Estimated grosses for Friday through Sunday at North American theaters, according to Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc.

1. "The Sixth Sense," $20.1 million.

2. "13th Warrior," $10.3 million.

3. "Runaway Bride," $6.9 million.

4. "Bowfinger," $6.6 million.

5. "Mickey Blue Eyes," $5.4 million.

6. "The Thomas Crown Affair," $4.7 million.

7. "The Muse," $4.2 million.

8. "In Too Deep," $4.1 million.

9. "The Blair Witch Project," $4.1 million. (tie)

10. "The Astronaut's Wife," $4 million.

Dudley Do-right was done-wrong

Another cartoon that did not need a big screen treatment

Brendan Fraser and Sarah Jessica Parker in a scene from the Universal Pictures release, "Dudley Do-right."

Again, the question is why. Why make another live-action movie out of another baby boomer TV institution? Why give it a bad script and put talented actors in roles where questionable scripting and plotless meandering muzzle them? Why trample the memory of a perfectly good cartoon that had a delightfully cockeyed 1960s sensibility?

Sadly, it's happened again. "Dudley Do-right" is a Dud Done-wrong.

Not that there's anything really wrong with it; it's perfect cookie-cutter Hollywood with, admittedly, a couple nice flourishes. But we seem to have settled, in the late 1990s, for films that have nothing wrong with them - and very little right with them as well.

You know the premise: The clumsy but goodhearted Dudley Do-right (Brendan Fraser) is a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police patrolling his own small but beloved region of the Great White North. He's in love with Nell Fenwick (Sarah Jessica Parker); his adversary is the epitome of exuberant villainy, Snidely Whiplash (Alfred Molina), with his waxed mustache and stovepipe hat.

The plot: Snidely is fixing to take over Semi-Happy Valley and turn it into Whiplash City, much as Mr. Potter turned Bedford Falls into Pottersville in "It's a Wonderful Life." Snidely has an ingenious plan: Salt the hills with gold, then watch the prospectors come - and bring an economic boom with them. It works: "Yuppie wetbacks" in SUVs stream across the Canadian border.

Dudley, ever the faithful Mountie, must stop him and win the love of Nell, a thoroughly fickle and undesirable girl who can't seem to decide who's better for her - Dudley or Snidely. (Hello? Black cape! Evil cackle!)

Aside from mediocrity, this movie faces one really basic problem. It sets up an epic battle between Dudley and Snidely, when part of the appeal of the Jay Ward cartoons was that the clashes were never epic, just eternally unceasing. Like the Coyote and the Road Runner, Dudley and Snidely were trapped in some cartoon limbo, doomed to never really win and never really lose. That weary adversarial nature made the cartoons more fun. Here, it's just insipid.

Fraser, whose talent was unleashed in "Gods & Monsters" and "Blast From the Past," is sent back to his "George of the Jungle" days here. His performance is fine - above average - but that's not saying much when you consider the inferior material he's dealing with. Likewise Molina's Snidely.

Parker is merely annoying as Nell. Her best line comes when she's watching an obnoxiously stereotypical Indian

Entertainment

Funnies on audio are hard to find now-a-days

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

As someone who has always enjoyed listening to comedy albums, I am discouraged that the release of this type of entertainment has slowed to a trickle.

It used to be that a new Richard Pryor or George Carlin record would come out every year and I would snatch them up. Today, Pryor is extremely ill and basically retired and Carlin only produces a new album every few years.

Some comedians still put out humor albums, but no one matches the consistent level of hilarity of Pryor and Carlin. In addition, comics such as Robert Klein, Robin Williams and Steve Martin are no longer making humor albums, with Klein the last to do so at least five years ago.

Bill Hicks was a terrific young comic who put out several albums that were a scream, but sadly, he died young of cancer. If he had lived, he had the potential to be the successor to Pryor and Carlin in the field.

I keep searching for new comedy albums, even though most of my trips to music stores leave me disappointed. I enjoy Chris Rock.

Margaret Cho made an album that makes me laugh. Richard Jeni and Bobby Slayton both have created comedy albums that are worth hearing repeatedly. Kathleen Madigan, a comic from St. Louis, has an entertaining recording of her material on the market.

I also love to find recordings of old-time comedians. Through the late Jack Carney and his old "Saturday Morning Comedy Show" on KMOX, I learned how funny people like Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Bob Newhart and Bob and Ray were. Carney also played clips

'In Too Deep': Raw and disturbing, but not engrossing

Good performances, but this film never really grabs the audience like it should

From its grainy, unfocused opening sequence, it's clear that nothing about "In Too Deep" will be clear.

Not the characters - they fluctuate from flashes of raging sadism to tender charity.

Certainly not the story - it meanders from one violent scene to the next before arriving at its startling climax.

One thing's for sure: "In Too Deep" is an extremely raw, disturbing film which sometimes goes over the top in its brutality.

Omar Epps plays Jeff Cole, a cocky young narcotics officer for the Cincinnati Police Department. Jeff goes undercover to bring down a drug lord nicknamed God (L.L. Cool J). No cop has been able to penetrate God's operation, based in the projects, but Jeff is sure he can. After all, he grew up in the projects. Plus, he has boundless faith in his abilities.

In his undercover persona of J. Reid, Jeff gets sucked into God's world. He hangs out with God's deputies, befriends them, becomes one of them. Soon he loses sight of the man he used to be and is torn between answering to his lieutenant (Stanley Tucci) and his new boss.

He also struggles to balance his police work with his other passion, a beautiful, sweet dancer named Myra (Nia Long) with whom he could find true happiness for the first time.

Everything in Jeff's world is a contradiction.

God dominates the projects through his drug cartel, yet he drops a ton of cash each year on a Thanksgiving dinner for poor people.

The drug dealers coldly engage in illegal, immoral activity, but many are married with children and they're steadfastly loyal to each other. Several of them attend the baptism of God's infant son, and one serves as the godfather. As he cradles his infant son, God tells his friends proudly, "He's gonna be something someday."

Despite these intriguing complexities, the story from screenwriters Paul Aaron and Michael Henry Brown never really hooks the viewer.

The harsh treatment of women is especially hard to watch, from the words the male characters use to describe them to the ease with which God beats a woman he thinks has stolen from him. He picks her up by her hair from the sidewalk as she screams and cries, then sticks a gun in her mouth - all in front of his son, who's strapped into a car seat in God's BMW.

Most of the performances are strong, especially Epps' as the man caught in the middle. He shows a wide range of emotions as his two worlds tug at him. He's brazen and rebellious at times, scared and tormented at others.

Tucci, as a stable, soft-spoken voice of reason, again displays his range. We saw this spring as a wily Puck in "William Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream," last year as "Winchell," for which he won a Golden Globe, and in 1996 as a high-strung Italian restaurant owner in "Big Night."

L.L. Cool J never truly embodies his character's villainy, though. Even at his cruelest moments, he still comes off as a nice guy - his sweet baby face betrays him.

Pam Grier as a member of the undercover detective team is one of the few strong female characters in the film, and her presence provides an element of peace. But her time on screen is way too short.

Michael Rymer's direction often relies on quick pans and extreme close-ups of faces, guns and knives, providing an engrossing tension, enhanced by the thumping bass of gangsta rap in nearly every scene.

The lighting also enhances the film's moods. Epps and Long sit before a fireplace during a quiet talk, and its golden glow warms them. Later, bright white headlights splash across Epps' face before he enters a drug bust in the film's climax.

"In Too Deep," a Miramax release, is rated R for strong language, violence and drug use. Running time: 105 minutes.
